While firing one after another of the foreign professors who have made Ghana's two universities the best in de-colonized sub-Saharan Africa, the government has reminded the 2,800 students what will henceforth be expected of them. "All scholarships will be reviewed each year," explains the Ghanaian Times, spokesman for the government, "on the basis of satisfactory performance and good conduct. . . . For our purpose, and for the purpose of our revolution, the hallmark of good conduct in our universities should be close identification with the spirit and objects of the Convention People's Party. Today, by the overwhelming votes of the people of Ghana, this country has been ushered into a one-party Socialist democracy under the aegis of the Convention People's Party which is led by Osagyefo [Redeemer] Dr. Kwame Nkrumah, the soul of the nation and the source of our guiding ideology. In the performance of this constitutional duty it is imperative that our universities must be brought to heel."

KIGALE, RWANDA

A number of European travelers and several long-time residents have now reached Nairobi from Rwanda. They report that the slaughtering of Watutsi is being carried out systematically, on a country-wide basis, under the direction of President Kiyabanda's government. The killings began on a mass scale immediately after the Dec. 21 raid by Watutsi exiles, and are accounting for an average of 1,000 deaths per day. This pace, and the fact that all roads and paths out of the country are blocked to prevent any Watutsi from escaping, indicate a deliberate genocide aiming to wipe out the entire Watutsi minority of 250,000. Appeals for help to UN officials have brought the reply that this is of no concern to them since it is an internal affair of the Rwanda Government.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy left Jakarta at noon on January 23. In a speech that night to 15,000 students assembled, fascist-style, in the new stadium, Sukarno gave his interpretation of the meaning of their discussions. Indonesia's determination "to crush the neo-colonialist project of Malaysia," he proclaimed, "and to aid the struggle of the people of North Kalimantan [northern Borneo] is a matter of principle," whatever adjustment is made in tactics. He concluded: "Onward! Never Retreat! Crush Malaysia!" Using the formula of "an Asian solution for Asian problems"—which Kennedy accepted—Sukarno will press for a plebiscite in Sabah (North Borneo) and Sarawak, and will demand withdrawal of British troops. Meanwhile, guerrilla operations will continue under cover of the cease-fire. In deference to American sensibilities, the Indonesian regular troops who train and lead the guerrilla units will for the time being discard distinctive uniforms and insignia.

OTTAWANeo-Colons

A French mission has just completed discussions with federal and provincial officials, and a tour of the prairie provinces, to arrange resettlement of 5,000 displaced Algerian colons. A number of colons families are already established in the prairies and doing well. The big-scale mechanized grain farming resembles their enterprises in Algeria, and they find French-speaking neighbors, schools, churches and TV-radio. Some Canadians worry that the influx may add to Canada's bi-cultural tensions, and others have a horrendous picture of all colons as fanatic OAS assassins. But the government, convinced they will make excellent citizens, is preparing to welcome the first arrivals next month.

Gambling is far and away Britain's outstanding growth industry, and today absorbs a higher percentage of the national income than in any other country. Billions of pounds go annually into bets on horse and dog racing—off- as well as on-track betting is legal—and into the football (soccer) pools, the often colossal prizes of which are tax-free. A recent government report shows that in 1963, 21,956 licensed "gaming clubs" were in operation, with a membership of 16,539,214 (a third of the total population). Bingo is the mass favorite, but since the gaming act was liberalized four years ago, clubs featuring roulette, baccarat, chemin de fer and even crap have zoomed. Slot machines, another recent introduction, also are multiplying geometrically. There are now over 24,000 of them spinning merrily away, and returning a net annual profit of ten million pounds over and above all rentals, charges, taxes and payoffs.
